

General Pershing, a guest at Chicago's famous "Bal Fantastique," society's annual costume ball. Here he is shown with Mrs. Potter Palmer (left) and Mrs. John Borden. Wide World.

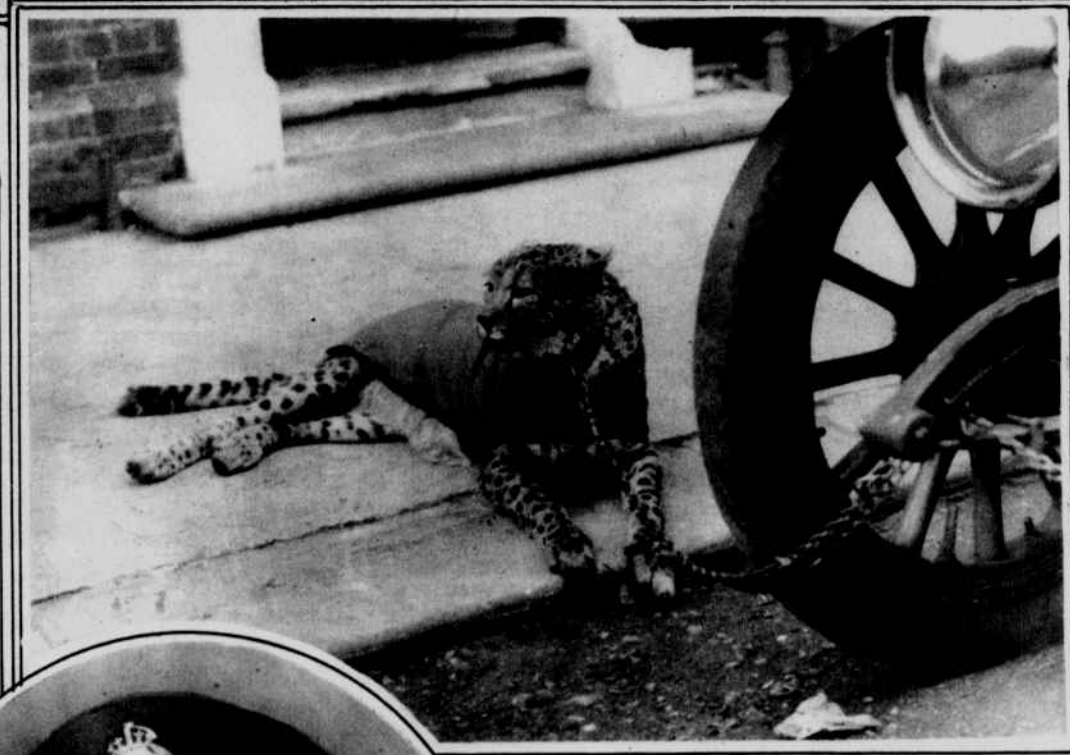

The Viceroy of India as a huntsman. Lord Reading (left) and his attendants at a tiger shoot in Gwalior, where several fine specimens were taken. International.

The first of the bag. Lord Reading and one of the tigers he killed on the estate of the Maharajah of Scindia at Gwalior. International.

At right: Mrs. Philip S. P. Randolph in her charming costume at the Bazaar Boutique, society's fashion show in Philadelphia. Pacific & Atlantic.

No danger of theft. Sheba, the cheetah owned by Mrs. Mortimer Handcock of London, which guards her mistress's car on shopping tours. New York Herald Foreign Photo.

Rear Admiral Sir G. Gaunt, in command of the English fleet in the Dardanelles while the Lausanne conference settles the straits question. Gilliams.

The Earl of Cavan and his bride, who was Lady Joan Mulholland, photographed in their home following the wedding. Central News.

Mr. and Mrs. Christy Mathewson, guests of his former manager at a homecoming party to the famous pitcher. In the group "Matty" and his wife are seated, Mr. and Mrs. John J. McGraw standing. International.

Decorations of a different type. Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, recently retired, lays aside his service citations for those conferred on his prize poultry on his farm in Westwood, Mass. International.

Georges Clemenceau pays a tribute to George Washington. Photo shows him leaving Washington's tomb after a visit of several hours at Mount Vernon. Harris & Ewing.